The Greenville Police Department requires comprehensive reporting that includes both uses of force and threats of force. Per section 4.2.1 of GPD policy, anytime an employee uses physical force or points a firearm directly at a person, they must make a complete written Response to Resistance and Aggression (RRA) Report to his or her supervisor.

Response to Resistance and Aggression Reports should be completed no sooner than 24 hours after the incident has occurred to allow for accurate recall of the incident. Reports must be submitted in writing to an officer's supervisor within 72 hours of an incident.

Every use of force report is logged, tracked, and reviewed by the Office of Internal Affairs. All RRA reports are also reviewed by the designated Bureau Commander and Chief of Police.
